"August Flower"

"I inherit some tendency to Dyspepsia from my mother. I suffered two years in this way; consulted a number of doctors. They did me no good. I then used Relieved In your August Flower and it was just two days when I felt great relief. I soon got so that I could sleep and eat, and I felt that I was well. That was three years ago, and I am still first-class. I am never without a bottle, and if I feel constipated the least particle a dose or two of August Flower does the work. The beauty of the medicine is, that you can stop the use of it without any bad effects on the system.

Constipation While I was sick I felt everything it seemed to me a man could feel. I was of all men most miserable. I can say, in conclusion, that I believe August Flower will cure anyone of indigestion, if taken Life of Misery with judgment. A. M. Weed, 229 Bellefontaine St., Indianapolis, Ind."

David's Coat.

David Robertson, the Scotch naturalist, had, when a boy, rather an unusual experience in clothing himself, and the method he adopted seems amusingly different from that of boys in our own day, who when they want a new jacket ask for it or go without.

David was early apprenticed to a farmer to herd the cattle, and one day he went to a fair with his master and there gained a prize of twenty shillings by running a race. When he reached home his mistress offered him for the pound enough of homemade woolen cloth for a coat, but though David joyfully accepted it, he was disappointed at finding that the tailor would not make his yearly visit to the house for some time.

With the impatience of youth he begged his mistress to let him make the coat himself. At first she refused, but when David persisted, she agreed to the wild project, stipulating, however, that he should take all the responsibility and ask help of no one.

The boy began by carefully ripping his old coat in pieces for a pattern, and by this he cut the new one, first numbering the pieces in chalk that he might know how to put them together. As all his time belonged to his master he was obliged to take his sewing out into the pasture, and there after a month of laborious work the new coat was completed. Its buttons came from an old coat which had been discarded by his master, and the thread with which it was put together had been spun and dyed at the house.

When David showed his mistress the new coat she was loud in praise of it, and declared that not even the tailor could have done it better. One thing, however, it needed, and that was a careful pressing, which he was allowed to give it at the house.

The hardest task of all remained, for he was obliged to remake his old coat, and as the seams were frayed and delicate he had to exercise great care in joining them again. Another month and this task also was done. Then was David the proud possessor of two coats.

The Queer End of a Snake Fight.

One of the most exciting contests ever witnessed occurred at the depot of the Georgia Midland railroad.

The contest was between Ernest Lower's pet king snake and a little green snake known as a "garter." The snakes were about of equal size and length, and it was hard to tell for half an hour who would prove the victor in the contest.

After racing around the cage for some time the king snake caught the green one about six inches from the head, slipping himself around his adversary and getting his mouth closer and closer to its head. The green snake the while kept its mouth wide open as if in an effort to get its head too large to go into the king snake's mouth and thereby thwart its effort to swallow him. This effort proved futile, for soon the head and about six inches of the green snake were in the stomach of the king. At this point of the game another and more stubborn contest took place.

In the cage are two wires—one running perpendicular and the other horizontal. Twisting itself around the perpendicular wire, the green snake tied itself into various hard knots. Mounting the horizontal bar, or wire, the king began the work of unfastening the coils of the other by continued pulling and swallowing.

When the feat was accomplished, with the exception of about a half foot of the tail, it looked like the king snake would be defeated, but with some maneuvering the tail was untied, and the job of swallowing was completed.

After finishing the task the king snake looked wonderfully pleased, and raced around eying the spectators for some minutes. —Cor. Atlanta Constitution.

A Queer Hallucination.

There is a very good story, which has the somewhat unusual merit of truth, which has been told again and again in the dispensary, as illustrating the power of imagination. A lady, who was otherwise quite rational, was troubled with a horrible feeling that a snake was gnawing away her vitals, as she explained it. Efforts were made to convince her of her error, but without avail, and it was finally decided to humor her out of her trouble. A small snake was secured, and one day she was told the necessary operation would be gone through to relieve her of her trouble. Chloroform was administered and when she revived a scratch made while she was asleep was exhibited as evidence of the superiority of her diagnosis over that of the physicians. Her joy was painful to witness, and she went away thoroughly cured. —Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Murder in the Air.

As a Sixth avenue elevated train approached the Eighteenth street station the other afternoon a series of feminine yells broke upon the ears of the passengers.

With others I rushed to the windows overlooking the east side of the street. A crowd was fast gathering on the sidewalk. When the train stopped at the station a number of passengers got out to learn who "was being murdered."

As I reached the spot the crowd was gazing intently at a dentist's sign. Just then the yells ceased, and a man came out of the doorway with this announcement: "She's only having her tooth pulled." —New York Herald.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

The Gold Bug Press Does Not Want It Discussed by the People—Senator Stewart Defines the Question to be Solved—Facts for the People.

WASHINGTON, July 12, 1891.

Journal's Special Washington Correspondent.

It is evident from the editorials daily appearing in one or the other of the leading journals of New York on the monetary situation since that question began to be discussed in the columns of the Telegram that the press of that city is doing all it possibly can to stem the tide of public opinion in favor of silver and to ridicule the idea of making the free coinage of that metal a leading issue in the campaign of 1892. These vain attempts to dislodge the farmers and the miners from the strong position assumed by them only energize their advocates to follow the Anglo-Saxon policy of persistently hitting the same nail on the head until the object in view is gained. These simulated attacks, however, are calculated to belittle the cause of the bimetallists and strengthen that of the monometallists, and it is meet that they should be returned in kind.

On noticing such an editorial as above alluded to in the World, Senator Stewart made the following reply in the Telegram:

THE QUESTION ACTUALLY TO BE SOLVED.

The concerted action of the World and Tribune to dictate issues for the people is significant. The fact that the entire metropolitan press, Democratic, Mugwump and Republican, insists that the money question, shall not be discussed before the people, indicates fear of publicity of the doings of the gold trust. These journals voice the sentiments of the brokers and bankers of New York who invest and collect on foreign account. European holders of several thousand millions of American securities naturally desire contraction and dear money. The brokers and bankers who represent them are more anxious to please their clients and employers than to benefit the American people. It is but natural that their organs in the commercial metropolis should desire to avoid discussion of the money question by the people.

Why should both the Republican and Democratic organs insist that the tariff, the billion appropriation of the last Congress and the Force bill should be the only issues? The Republicans pretend to be satisfied with tariff. Why desire its agitation? Why not let it rest? The Democrats have been beaten in every great contest over the tariff. Why should they be anxious to continue the controversy? The war is over. We are now enjoying the fruits of the union. Why fight reconstruction over again? The appropriations of the last Congress have already been made and largely expended. All that can be done with them, if they were excessive, is to be more economical in the future. This both parties are equally ready to promise.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

What do all these questions amount to if the people have no money? What difference does it make whether prices are high or low if the mass of the people cannot buy at any price? The people can stand high tariffs or low tariffs, extravagance or economy, or almost any mal-administration, provided they have money. No civil government has been able to withstand the loss of its circulating medium.

The organs of the Gold Trust appreciate the uprising of the masses. They see the handwriting on the wall. They have become desperate, and resort to the most extravagant language. For example, I find in the editorial column of the World of July 7, the following:

To give prominence to the coinage question in the coming campaign is to do the bidding of the most selfish of all free coinage advocates—the mine owners.

Why are the mine owners the most selfish of all free coinage advocates? Have not the farmers suffered as much as the mine owners? Has not cheap silver for Russia, India and other silver standard countries developed the production of farm products among our rivals in the European market, to the ruin of the American farmer? Have not the gold standard and contraction reduced the price of farm land and farm products fully one-half for the benefit of foreign investors in American securities? Why do the agents of foreign investors denounce the mine owners as selfish? Who are the gold and silver mine owners of the West? Are they not the pioneers who developed that country by energy, perseverance and privation, the parallel of which does not exist? Have they not, on an average, expended in labor and supplies more than two dollars for every dollar produced? Have they not suffered a discount of more than a hundred million dollars on the silver they mined? Have they not been compelled to abandon their mines and their homes? Has not the Gold Trust retarded the development of and robbed the mining region?

SILVER AS MONEY.

Silver had been used as money for thousands of years. It was the money of the Constitution. Had the miners not a right to assume that it would continue to be used as money? Are they selfish because they have been robbed? Do the bondholders deny to them the right to protest against fraud and robbery?

The arrogant language of the representatives of accumulated capital is not pleasant to the farmer whose mortgage has been doubled by contraction, to the agriculturist who has no market for his products, and to the mine owner who has lost his investment by reason of fraudulent and clandestine legislation. If farming and mining are destroyed in this country by contraction, stagnation and hard times, how will the people of the United States pay the six or seven thousand millions they owe to forsigners? If production is stopped for want of money, how will foreign bondholders get their pay? The competition of silver standard countries has already driven the people of this country from a foreign market for nearly everything except cotton and petroleum. How long these staples will have a foreign market without more money to aid in their production is a serious problem.

ARROGANCE OF COLLECTORS.

The arrogance of the collectors of foreign bonds surpasses all bounds. They demand payment in gold, and deny to the people money with which to produce commodities for sale in order to buy gold. Why can Russia buy gold in spite of the powers of Europe if it is not cheap money that enables her to produce something for sale with which to make the purchase? Why is India more prosperous than ever before if it is not because she has plenty cheap money with which to stimulate production?

The political party which takes a stand against free coinage of silver is lost. One or the other party will certainly be for silver. If both oppose it a third party is necessary and will be forced into existence. The time for sham issues is passed. The real question before the country is how to obtain more money. This issue cannot be ignored or forgotten. The daily transactions of life admonish every citizen that the money question is paramount to all others, and that it should not be left exclusively to money lenders or their agents.

A FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Why should there not be a Farmers' Alliance? Why should the great producing class submit to legislation discriminating against their interest, upon which Wall Street insists? The price of wheat, cotton and all the great staples which are exported is determined by the foreign market. The price of farm products in the foreign market is controlled by Russia, India and other silver standard countries. These countries produce with money which is cheap in Europe, but at par at home. The United States produces with dear money and sells in competition with Asiatics. Free traders and high tariff advocates alike insist that the farmers of this country shall compete with Asiatics, and that the Asiatics shall have the advantage of an abundant circulating medium at home, while the producers of this country must use the dearest possible money. The contest with the Asiatics is unequal. Every year their exports of farm products increase, while ours decrease.

A portion of the metropolitan press is gratified at these results. The farmers have been generous to the manufacturers. They have voted for protection of home industry. Why should the manufacturers insist that the farmers should sell in the cheapest market, in competition with Asiatics, and buy in the dearest market, under a protective tariff. There must be reciprocity between the manufacturers and the farmers, or the results will be disastrous. If the manufacturers insist that the surplus farm products shall be sold in the cheapest market in competition with the Asiatics, the farmers will insist upon the right to purchase supplies in a cheaper market than the protected laborer of this country can furnish.

If either of the great parties regard the Farmers' Alliance as a menace to its supremacy it can easily avoid all danger from that quarter. Comply with the reasonable demands of the people and the farmers will adhere to the respective parties with which they have hitherto been affiliated.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

A PROSPEROUS COMPANY.

Several Thousand Dollars Distributed in This Vicinity.

The California Syrup of Figs Co. at its annual meeting just closed, re-elected the following named trustees for the ensuing year: R. E. Queen, Thomas E. Haydon, J. J. Quinn, J. F. Condon, and W. F. Fonda. R. E. Queen was re-elected President, Thomas E. Haydon Vice President and J. J. Quinn Secretary.

The financial report of the company shows it to be in a very prosperous condition and a dividend of $50,000 was declared, payable on demand. The company has a large surplus capital and the Trustees have ordered half a million dollars to be expended in advertising during the next year, which will make it one of the largest advertisers in the world. Reason is to be congratulated on being the home of so successful an enterprise, as it will bring large sums of money to the town every year, the most of the stock being held by Renolites, prominent among them are Thomas E. Haydon, J. J. Quinn, J. F. Condon and R. E. Queen.

The company is doing an immense business, having a large manufactory at Louisville, Ky., and one at San Francisco, from which about 2,000,000 bottles of Syrup of Figs are being sold annually.

A COLLISION ON THE C. P. &amp; R.

An Unknown Man Killed.

The East-bound passenger train, No. 1, with engines 366 and 98, collided with passenger train No. 4, engine 183, at the west switch at Clark's Station, twenty miles east of Reno, last night, badly damaging the engines and killing an unknown man, probably a tramp, who was riding on the West-bound train. No other person was injured. We were not able to learn the cause of the accident, though the supposition is that the air brakes refused to work. Both trains were on time. A wrecking train was sent up from Wadsworth to assist in clearing the track.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

EXPERIMENTS IN GROWING SPONGES.

It was rumored in the sponge trade on Saturday that a company had been formed with $100,000 capital to undertake experiments at sponge growing on the ocean shore of Long Island, opposite the Shinnecock hills. The story caused considerable amusement among practical men in the business.
"It will be a waste of time and money," one of them said, "to try to grow sponge in northern waters. Sponges will not grow in a cold climate. We have a grade of sponges known in the trade as Long Island grass sponges. They are of a cheap quality, and do not come from our Long Island across the river. They are from the south."
Several attempts have been made to grow sponges in this section during the past ten years. "A firm in Cedar street were interested in a sponge raising scheme down at Patchogue five years ago," a dealer said. "They started in, if my memory serves me right, by making an artificial bottom of coral, practically the same substance on which the sponge grows in the Mediterranean. Then a vessel load of sponges was sunk on the coral bed. After a time several sponge fishers of wide experience were sent out to the bed to gather the first crop. They found the seed sponges rotted and there was not the slightest evidence of a new crop. Another effort to grow sponges was subsequently made down the New Jersey shore, and, like the Long Island experiments, nothing came of it."—New York Sun.

Hundreds at a Dog's Funeral.
For a number of years Colonel J. B. Dodge, of Warsaw, has been the owner of a most beautiful and intelligent shepherd dog. He was very friendly with children. Two years ago Frank, while interviewing another dog on the railroad track, was run over by a passing train, crushing one of his hind legs and cutting off his beautiful tail. Thursday Frank, who had become quite decrepit and deaf, wandered down to the railroad again and was struck by a train and killed instantly.
The news flew like wildfire among the boys, and they concluded to give him a funeral such as no dog ever had in this part of the country. Selecting a suitable location, the grave was dug and a respectable coffin was made, and Frank was placed in it in one of his favored trick attitudes—that of playing dead. The coffin was then closed and the grave filled up in the presence of fifty ladies and gentlemen, who were attracted by the novelty, and at least 200 boys. The whole proceeding was conducted with the utmost decorum.—Cor. Indianapolis Sentinel.

A Millionaire Buys a Hat.
Isidor Wormser was acknowledged the other day to be the greatest economist of Wall street. A peddler's wagon was anchored in New street, fifteen feet from the Stock exchange and close to Delmonico's. He peddled straw hats. Many looked at the hats, and yet few purchased until Mr. Wormser ambled along. He wanted a straw hat. He tried several.
He has a colossal head, and only one hat fitted, and that was a misfit until Mr. Wormser manipulated it. He first swelled the circumference by jamming his knee into it, and even then it was a little tight. As a last resource, at his suggestion, the peddler ripped out the lining.
"How much?" he asked of the peddler.
"Thirty-five cents," replied the itinerant merchant, and Mr. Wormser paid the price without a murmur.—New York Sun.

An Error Healed Their Differences.
Even the "intelligent compositor" sometimes proves to be the instrument of great good. For example, on Saturday an indignant husband wrote and gave to a Brooklyn newspaper an advertisement in which he gave notice that he would not be responsible for any debts contracted by his wife. He wished it to be inserted twice, and somewhere in the copy of the advertisement he wrote the words "For two days." These the "intelligent compositor" interpreted so that when the notice appeared it read as follows: "For two days after date I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife." The separated couple both saw the absurdity of the thing and concluded to take the compositor's view of the case. They are now among the happiest persons in Brooklyn.—Newark (N. J.) Advertiser.

A Hard Record to Beat.
Marketmaster Hibbe, of Dubuque, Ia., who fell and broke his leg recently, has an extended record for broken bones. At three years of age he fell from a wagon and had three ribs broken; at five he fell down a flight of stairs and broke his right arm; at nine he was thrown by a schoolmate and had his left arm broken; at twelve he fell and broke two fingers; at nineteen he was blown from a steeple by the wind and alighting on a pile of sand had his back strained; last spring, at about thirty years of age, he fell off the roof of the Dubuque high school building, breaking his thigh and jaw and dislocating his shoulder and ankle. He says he is still good for fifteen or twenty more falls if they must come his way.—Dubuque Letter.

Insect Plagues.
Cold weather evidently fails to affect the vitality of insect eggs. In spite of the exceptional rigor of the last winter all northern Prussia and Silesia is suffering from the ravages of a beetle known as the Mai-kafer ("May bug"), and the south coasts of the Mediterranean have been visited by portentous locust swarms. In Sicily the public schools of several villages have been closed to enlist the youngsters in the warfare against the common enemy, and in Algiers a district of twenty square miles has been covered with a locust stratum of three to five inches.—Philadelphia Times.

Nathaniel Leavitt, a farmer of St. George, Me., put away in a canvas purse money to pay a mortgage due last month. Upon going after the purse he found that mice had totally destroyed every bill.
